STATE ISSUES GUIDELINES FOR TESTING OF PRIVATE WATER SUPPLIES

Dr. Charles Okey, director of the State's Public Health Laboratory, issued some guidelines for the state for having its water tested. The laboratory receives inquiries and requests throughout the year. During the spring, these increase significantly.

Samples of water to be analyzed must be collected according to directions and only in containers furnished by the laboratory.

Requests for a "water kit" containing a jug and instructions for taking samples may be mailed. Address your request to Public Health Laboratory, State House, Augusta, Maine. A check or money order for $2.00 made out to the Treasurer of State should be enclosed.

Water kits may be picked up at reception desk, Department of Health and Welfare, 221 State Street, Augusta (former Internal Revenue Bldg.). First, a $2.00 service fee should be paid to the cashier, and to the left of the front door. When sampling has been completed, the kit may be returned by post or delivered in person to the water laboratory, located in Health and Welfare building, Augusta.

Water kits are available for a week to 10 days for people to be processed and a kit to be mailed out.

This procedure is to be followed by the public for the sampling of private water supplies and is applicable to water sampling of schools, hospitals, and State and Park Commissions.

COMMENTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE TOWN MANAGER

A small group attended the informational meeting held by the Planning Board Wednesday night. Questions were answered pertaining to the subdivision regulations.

The Board would like people to be better informed on the regulations as they will be unable to record deeds legally nor will utilities be connected without approval of the Planning Board. Copies of the regulations are available in the Town Office. These conform to the guidelines outlined by the State law.

At the present the Planning Board is concentrating their efforts on these Subdivision Regulations as they are in effect throughout the State. The next major project will be to investigate the alternatives for solid waste disposal. There will be some real problems encountered as the expense involved can be considerable disposing of the rubbish.

A temporary rate schedule for sewer users is now being worked on. We are attempting to reach a fair fee for all types of users.

SHC CREWS COMMENCE SPRING CLEANING ROADSIDES

The State Highway Commission maintenance crews will start a massive effort this week to put Maine's roadsides in a clean and attractive condition following a difficult winter. The clean-up chore will be part of Earth Week activities to be undertaken throughout the state.

Where snow has melted sufficiently to permit litter to be picked up, SHC crews will be out walking the roadsides filling plastic bags which they will stack along the shoulder of the road to be picked up later by trucks. Maintenance crews will continue the clean up campaign until roadsides of the entire 11,000 miles of state and state aid highways are picked up.

During the summer and fall seasons, roadsides will be cleaned of litter as needed on a continuing basis. During the last fiscal year the SHC spent over $270,000 to pick up roadside litter.

Other "spring housecleaning" activities such as sweeping sand from pavements, straightening sign posts, replacing guard rails and painting new center line stripes will be undertaken in preparation for what may well be the biggest year ever for numbers of motorists visiting Maine.

SURVEY NOTES LACK OF POLICE SERVICE IN MANY SECTIONS OF MAINE

A study of police services in Maine reveals that the duplication of police services is only very limited while the level of non-service and limited service throughout the state "is pronounced."

The study of the level and quality of delivery of police services in Maine was conducted by the Public Administration Service, a Chicago-based consulting firm under a grant from the Maine Law Enforcement Planning and Assistance Agency.

Among the important findings of the study are: Police services in Maine in 1970 required expenditures which surpassed $10 million; A commitment of resources and an expenditure level which exceeds the present ones are needed to raise service levels in a number of police service and functional areas; Duplication of effort among police agencies in Maine is not prevalent; Fragmentation of police services is prevalent in Maine to a degree which exceeds that of duplication. The State should take steps to conform or refute the assumed disadvantages of fragmentation and respond in the manner dictated by the findings.

Incidents of new service and limited service in Maine are pronounced. Steps should be taken to close the service gaps in the service and functional areas; Quality in a majority of police services and functional areas is modest. Steps should be taken to substantially upgrade quality in the service and functional areas. The survey had as its objective to identify the kinds and quality of police services presently being provided to the citizens of Maine.

In terms of pure data the following are some of the facts regarding police services in Maine:

There are 129 police departments (112 local police, 16 county sheriffs and the Maine State Police). These agencies employ nearly 2,000 full time personnel and spend more than $10 million for operating expenses in 1970. The majority of these expenses went for personnel. Police commit the major share of their resources to two police field services: patrol and traffic. The second priority commitment is to communications and investigations.

GREENWOOD CITY

Mr. Colista Morgan, Corres. — Wednesday morning I awoke to the sight of the robin by my window.

There's a new note in the choir's song upon the leafless boughs.

There's a new song in the air today — a song that seems to rouse and resurrect the life within.

Green cold in winter hours making all the old, sweet dreams — blossoms, buds, and flowers.

Patience Strong — It was beautiful all day and I enjoyed it fully. But Thursday my day was entirely different. I felt that I would like a quiet day.

April that I would like to see it by this year.

In the morning I went on a firm to the woods. The clouds hung in the distance. In the air the silence of the hills increased.

A single crow cawed his way out of the night.

Days of pale sunlight sent threads of shadows on the snow, with here and there a stately tree overlooking a hillside.

I peered a stone wall the red fence "wound his clock" and before he had finished a woodchuck had dug up the bank. He sat in the position as the squirrel looked at me, alert and ready to vanish if he must.

Glancing around I did not believe it was Ground Day and that he had just emerged and was forecasting the weather. "More winter..." He gave himself all summer but he had today I could not imagine. You know the farmer's saying, "The woodchuck eats his strength to dig holes in the holes to give him an appetite."

Like the squirrel disappearing beneath the wall and I went on my way.

The sky began to look silver and look out of which rain or snow might fall at any moment.

The robin's call came to me from the edge of the field and I thought he had come too soon even if he seemed happy at the present time.

Strangely home, the sky now seemed in touching distance. The air was pushing clouds over the mountain tops. Then gray rain in a steady race of snow came up from nothing and landed in the snow screen. It was coming from the south east soft and thick. On the mountain sides the other side of the valley it came past a shiver of white.

The trees and trees began to tremble under the weight as it rapidly fell and clung.

By mid afternoon our power began to go and come until it failed. Time turned back for the glow of kerosene lamps and the were again on the tables.

With the linenman City all night we heard the "on" as everything hurried "on" about the a. m.

On Friday morning a silvery glow beyond the eastern mountain peaks promised a good day.

The day to the north was colorful. A fogged beneath burdens of snow there was no wind. Under the earth was smoothed in a frosty soft and clean as cotton, as the candle deep.

A group of birches by the pond's edge seemed to be deep layers of snow on every branch and were trying to rise from the ground. Who could say that the man Robert Frost in his poem was right?

They were dragged to the withered ground by the lead. They seemed not to break; they were they are bowed under the load, they never break themselves.

They did well but the one alone will never be able to stand for although it stood for a while. The jewels of white were piled upon it; by morning it was broken beneath its load.

DR. SAVARD, EVANGELIST, TO HOLD MEETINGS IN ANDOVER APRIL 25 THRU 30

Dr. John A. Savard of Jefferson, Maine, will conduct special meetings at the Andover Town Hall, Andover. The campaign will open Tuesday, April 25, and conclude Sunday, April 30. Rev. M. Lester Strout, pastor of the Calvary Congregational Church, has announced that the meetings will be held each week night at 7 o'clock. Sunday services are scheduled at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m.

In addition to 13 years in pastorates, Mr. Savard has spent many years as an evangelist, conducting services throughout the Eastern Southern and Mid-Western states and Canada. During this time he has been associated with the Evangelistic Association of New England, Boston, Mass. He has directed the Cedar Lake Bible Conference Grounds, Cedar Lake, Ind., and served as president of the Atlanta Bible Institute, Atlanta, Ga. Recently his ministry has been with Barrington College, Barrington, R. I., as Staff Evangelist.

In connection with local church campaigns, he has ministered in youth rallies, high school assemblies, camp meetings, prisons and missions.

As president of the Savard Evangelistic Association, Mr. Savard says, "Our aim is to cooperate with pastor and people in the achievement of three goals: first, to bring Christians to a keener realization of their duties and privileges in Christ Jesus; second, to impress upon individuals their infinite need to make a decision to accept Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour; and third, to leave the spirit of revival in the hearts and actions of the church and converts."

Mr. Savard is also a qualified magician. At each evening service some magic is performed to catch the imagination of both the youth and adults. However, the magic is never performed aside from spiritual teaching.

AUTO THEFT RATE IN 1919 WAS "DEPLORABLE"

Automobile theft became a big problem for society and the insurance industry after World War I. Coverage for theft had been available on ocean marine policies since 1907, but there was practically no demand until the automobile became fully accepted by the American public.

By 1919, there were more than six million vehicles on the road and they were being stolen at the "deplorable" rate of 30 a month. By 1920, they were being stolen at a rate of 70,703 a month, reports the Insurance Information Institute.

Several reassignments and new assignments have been announced by Chief Warden William J. Shaw of the Maine Fish & Game Dept. David C. Perkins succeeds Robert Rondeau who goes to Springvale to fill a vacancy created by the retirement of Vernon Walker.

Another new warden is William F. Allen, who goes to Jonesboro. He replaces Michael Eaton who transfers to Dover-Foxcroft replacing retired warden Arthur Hitchcock. AUTO INSURANCE PREMIUM IN 1944 WAS $5 PER HORSEPOWER

A major English insurer introduced a comprehensive policy for cars in 1904 that based the premium rate on the size of the engine, says the Insurance Information Institute.

The insurer charged its policyholders one English pound for every unit of horsepower. If rates were that today, few could afford to drive a vehicle larger than a golf cart. (Note: apparently in 1904 one English pound—$5).

SUNDAY RIVER

— Mrs. R. M. Fleet, Corres. —

Miss Darnita Yates left the first of the week with her Spanish class from the Telstar Regional High School for a trip by air to Spain and a visit in that country.

Mrs. Jeffrey Yates called on Mrs. Barbara Yates one day this week from Albany.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shaw were in town Sunday from Bethel.

Bryce Yates is repairing his logging equipment getting ready for the spring work to open up in the woods.

The ice seem to be out of Sunday River, but there is not much bare ground showing along it. Also the large black birds or purple grackles are here hunting for bare ground.

I wish I could say our last snow was gone. But this week nine inches covered us up pretty deep again. It was so wet that it broke many limbs of trees and upset the telephone and light wires. Our power was off from 20 minutes past nine at night until most ten the next morning. Some had to start up their furnaces or fireplaces to warm up for breakfast.

Carolyn Baker of Westfield, N. J., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Baker of Sunday River Road has been accepted as a stewardess with American Airlines. She will start her training soon at Dallas, Tex.

NOTE OF THANKS

We would like to thank our friends and neighbors for their kind expressions of sympathy, also everyone who helped to ease the sorrow, in the recent loss of our loved one.

With our appreciation,
John A. Nowlin and family

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

— Mrs. Olive Davis, Corres. —

Hilo, Hawaii. I'm writing tonight at Hilo Lagoon Hotel while waiting for the time to pass. We are leaving the hotel about 3 p.m. Hawaiian time for the airport to take the plane which will bring us back to the snow country.

We went up into the volcano area yesterday. Steam was arising from many of the fissures in the craters. The rain and fog in one area kept us from viewing one of the craters. Pictures were shots of the eruption and were an awe-some sight. This building has much information on volcanoes and also showed the earth made by lava. There were miles of land covered with this black lava. No vegetation was seen in this particular area.

We were in Waikiki for four nights at Hawaiian Inn which was near the beach. During our stay here we took trips to Pearl Harbor, also to Hawaiian Pineapple factory and to the fields to see pineapple growing.

We stayed on Maui Island a couple of days touring the island where sugar cane predominated the fields.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Davis returned home from a trip to the Hawaiian Islands, Wednesday night.

FISH AND GAME DEPARTMENT REPORTS RECORD $4,400 SNOWMOBILE REGISTRATIONS

Maine's newly enacted $4,400 license for snowmobiles is projected to be the highest in the nation, according to William J. Hennessey, director of the Maine Fish and Game Department.

Hennessey said he didn't think the $4,400 license was excessive, but he said it was the only way to get the state out of the red. He said the department was in a "financial bind" and the license was the only way to get out of it.

During the past year, the department has received over $1 million in license fees, but it has also spent over $1 million in operating expenses.

LABOR DEPT. FIGURES SHOW 0.5% INCREASE IN C. P. I. DURING MONTH OF FEBRUARY

The Consumer Price index rose 0.5% in February, the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported. About three-fourths of the rise was due to meats. The February index was higher than the January index, particularly for food, particularly for meat.

After seasonal adjustment, the February increase was also 0.5%.

In the six months since the Economic Stabilization Program announced in August, the CPI has risen at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.3%. During the six months preceding the wage-price freeze, the annual rate of increase was 4.1%. The rate for the August-November period, which corresponds roughly to Phase I of the Economic Stabilization Program, was 1.7%.

From November to February (Phase II), the rate of increase was 4.9%. More than half of the acceleration between Phase I and Phase II was due to a sharp increase in food prices.

In February, the food price index, which includes both grocery store food and restaurant meals, rose 1.7% after seasonal adjustment.

This compares with a slight decline in January and a 0.7% increase in December. The seasonally adjusted food price index declined 0.1% after rising 0.2% in January. The index for services rose 0.2% as compared with 0.5% in the preceding month.

The index for food purchased in grocery stores rose 1.9% instead of rising down slightly as it usually does in February. On a seasonally adjusted basis the rise was the largest in one month since March 1969.

A steep rise in meat prices accounted for about 70% of the increase. Fresh fruit and vegetable prices rose considerably. Prices of dairy products advanced instead of declining as they usually do in February. The cereal and bakery products index advanced for the first time in four months. The index for food away from home-restaurant meals and snacks rose 0.2%, about the same rate as in the preceding month.

In contrast to the large increase in the food index, the index for selected commodities increased 0.1%, a little less than usual for February. Prices of women's apparel advanced considerably. Higher prices were recorded for spring dresses and for some year-round clothing as well. State and local tax changes were largely responsible for higher cigarette prices. Prices for the textile furnishings, new goods and reading materials, the other kind new car prices declined considerably, and prices of used cars and gasoline dropped sharply.

The 0.2% rise in the services index was smaller than in January, primarily because of increases in local transit fares, property taxes, and annual gas rates. However, charges for residential telephone and electrical services continued to rise sharply. The index for medical care rose at its fastest rate in January. Property insurance rates fell sharply, and mortgage interest rates declined.

Impact of the Economic Stabilization Program

And, as a result of the 0.5% increase in the February CPI, the annual rate of increase of the CPI was 3.3%.

Under Phase II of the Economic Stabilization Program, when the effects of price changes for raw agricultural products - fresh fruits and vegetables and eggs - used cars, houses, mortgage interest rates and taxes are removed, the increase in the February index was 0.4%. The 0.4% is more than the corresponding 0.1% increase in January and the 0.2% in December. Most of the 0.4% February increase was caused by higher prices for nonexempt foods purchased in grocery stores, especially meat. Price increases for telephone services, women's clothing, and a few other items - partially offset by a decline in gasoline prices - also contributed to the increase.

The above analysis is based on the contribution to the change between January and February of individual index components weighted by their relative importance in the CPI market basket. The behavior of the CPI can also be viewed through analysis of individual prices without regard to the relative importance in the index market basket. Accordingly, the Bureau of Labor Statistics analyzed the 120,000 individual prices it directly collects for use in the index. Approximately 80% of the 120,000 quotations represents monthly comparisons. Seventy percent of these prices remained unchanged, 8% decreased, and 22% increased between January and February.

SMELTERS URGED TO BE CAREFUL ABOUT LITTER

Each year in the early spring, small silver fish known as smelts make their way up Maine's brooks from the lakes in which they spend most of their lives. The smelts have but one goal in making the journey, to lay their eggs among the rocks lining the stream bottom.

Coinciding with this springtime phenomenon is another annual migration, that of the smelt fisherman, a hardy breed who ventures

February. The proportion of prices which increased was considerably larger this month than in any month since October when this analysis was initiated. The widespread increase in food prices accounted for almost all of this change.

The February index also includes about 23,000 price comparisons to February from periods prior to January. About 18,500 of these cover the quarterly span from November to February. About 12% of these prices increased, a slightly higher proportion than in last month's index. In addition, more than 4,500 rental units were surveyed for the index in February and about 2.3% of these increased between January and February. Of the total rental units surveyed, 2% showed increases in excess of 2.5% and about 1.2% had increases in excess of 5%.

forth with lantern, net, bucket and quite often some liquid refreshment with which to ward off the cold of the early spring evening.

Unfortunately a few among the sporting band are careless about the manner in which they dispose of the trash they generate in the course of an evening's fishing. The tendency on the part of a few has resulted in some very unhappy landowners who have been forced to close their land to all.

The current issue of a publication, produced by Wisconsin's Department of Natural Resources, documents three such closings. In Maine similar closings may be expected if sportsmen fail to follow the rules of common courtesy with respect to litter.

This year the Keep Maine Society Committee and the Maine Fish and Game Department are asking sportsmen to be extra careful about the litter problem. Outdoor litter bags are available from the Committee, Room 714, State Office Building, Augusta, free for the asking, so why not bring back a little of litter along with the smelt.
